

Train for a Rewarding Career as a Dental Assistant

Earn your diploma in Dental Assisting in as few as 10 months

If you are detail oriented, have good people skills, and enjoy working with your hands, Dental Assisting might be for you. Dental assistants play a vital role in the dental office, supporting dentists as they examine and treat patients. Dental assistants are like an extra set of hands for the dentists.

The Dental Assisting program at Unitek College emphasizes both the administrative and clinical skills you'll need to excel in the field of dentistry. The dynamic curriculum combines traditional instruction, simulation training, and a supervised externship.

Growing Demand for Dental Assistants

Increased patient numbers are driving dentists to hire more assistants. As a result, job opportunities are expected to grow much faster than other careers through 2028.¹ The median annual wage for dental assistants was $38,660 in May 2018.¹

Our Graduates Say It Best

"Unitek is the best. They have helped so many students and graduates, including me personally. My teachers and staff believed and shaped me into a better person than before. They helped me through mock interviews, especially giving me a boost of confidence before my externship started, and all the way until I finished. Everyone from Unitek Staff, thank you guys. From start to finish you guys were always there to help."

- Joselyn G, San Jose Graduate.
